Training

August 27 - 29, 2004

Hosted by the Unitarian Universalists of Clearwater

This continental training opportunity is available for everyone interested in working as a Youth Advisor for YRUU. UU teens are unique individuals who need the support and encouragement of equally unique adults. Youth and Youth Advisors establish a bond of mutual respect. Advisors have the opportunity to be a mentor in the lives of our UU teens.

We have the honor of having two experienced trainers from New Jersey and California. Jodi Slezak will be the youth trainer and Eric Swanson will be the adult trainer. We are looking forward to their enthusiasm and knowledge!

The cost of $75 for the weekend includes training, training supplies, food (suitable for a food-based faith), sleeping quarters (the social hall floor), and (one) shower facility! And of course, excellent UU company.

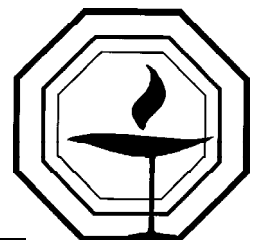

If any in your congregation are interested, please contact April Trahan at your earliest convenience. We will take an approximate head count by July 31st. Final registration is due by August 13th (give or take a few days). Come join us at UUC for what promises to be an exciting, insightful, and rewarding weekend of learning and fun.

Advisor training introduces the concepts of youth empowerment and how to run a youth group. This training is mandatory for all new Advisors to attend Florida District YRUU events and is strongly suggested for present Advisors. All Advisors must be at least 25 years old to attend District events.

This training will be conducted to simulate a youth conference and will follow the standard FDYRUU rules:

Florida District Young Religious Unitarian Universalist (FDYRUU) Conference Rules:

- Community breaking behaviors, such as sexual activity, destructive actions or attitudes are prohibited.
- No tobacco products, alcohol, illegal drugs, weapons or fireworks are allowed.
- If a youth is taking prescription drugs or has a medical condition, he or she must inform his or her advisor.
- Quiet same gender and coed sleeping must be made available at all conferences, and an advisor must stay in any sleeping area where there are two or more people.
- All advisors attending an FDYRUU conference must have completed Advisor Training. In special cases, the youth council co-chairs may waive this requirement.
- All attending an FDYRUU conference must remain onsite. In order to leave the premises, one must receive permission from his or her advisor and inform a designated advisor from the hosting church.
- All attending an FDYRUU conference, regardless of age, must abide by these rules, understanding that they may have to forego some of their usual privileges.
- Additional rules may be set by the hosting group.
